23 - 24 June 2019

6th Symposium of the Algerian Gas Industry Association
(AIG), by 23 and 24 June 2019 in Oran, at Hôtel
le Meridien.

AIG has chosen to focus the discussions for this 6th Symposium on the theme "Natural Gas at the Center of Energy Diversification". The program will be built around a number of thematic axes relating to upstream and downstream segments and international gas trade as well as the transport, and distribution, and multiple uses of natural gas.

Natural gas, as a key energy resource, will occupy a prominent place in the energy transition and security of our country. Today, natural gas is universally perceived as a central strategic and geopolitical issue. Increasingly, it is seen as an essential complementary element alongside the development of renewable energies and is likely to remain a central source of energy in the medium and long-term.

Natural gas will continue to occupy a key role in energy consumption models by optimizing its uses. In addition to the numerous scientific and technical discussions, attendees will have the privilege to hear keynote speeches by well-known personalities, dealing with major topics concerning the whole value chain of the gas industry.

I invite the members of the AIG as well as gas industry professionals, and academics and experts to take active part in this event with considerable global and domestic participation, responding to the present call for communication.

A technical exhibition will be held on the sidelines of the workshops and discussions in order to present innovations in the service of the gas industry.

With my kind regards, I am looking forward to meeting you at this 6th Symposium of AIG.
